Concepts addressed in this course: Using natural and logical consequences

Use consequences to let a child know his/her part in a problem and how he/she can change things.

Allows children to accept responsibility for their own behavior.

Encourages children to choose appropriate behavior because they know what the consequences of their behavior will be before they choose the behavior.

Natural consequences- things that happen naturally, or in course due to the child’s actions
  – Ex. Making snowballs without protection (mittens/gloves)

Logical consequences-safe consequences that would not have occurred naturally and are designed by an adult
  – Ex. Staying inside when there is inclement weather
