

PLACEMENT IN DEVELOPMENTAL COURSEWORK

www.SelectDakota.org

Each year the South Dakota Board of Regents works with administrators (principals, superintendents, and school board presidents) for each high school to provide them with data on their graduates first year in college. The state high school to college transition report is published each year in October and individual high school reports are distributed depicting overall academic performance and remedial placement. The number of South Dakota graduates requiring remedial coursework in Math and English has gone down slightly over the past few years, but roughly 30% of all graduates require some form of developmental curriculum before they can complete college level coursework in these subject areas. High school counselors are encouraged to review the data from their high school to determine how their students compare with the students throughout the state. Additionally, we encourage counselors to inform students about the guidelines depicted below which are used to place students in developmental coursework. Students are encouraged to take additional coursework in high school to address any deficiencies that may exist based on their performance on the ACT or SAT taken at the end of the junior year.

Development Placement Procedures

Placement in English courses are based on a student's ACT or SAT I test scores. The Board of Regents has mandated that students who do not meet the college readiness benchmark of 18 on the English sub-score must take a developmental course in this subject. If the required score is not met, students have the ability to challenge their placement into developmental courses by taking the COMPASS or ACCUPLACER examinations. These tests are computer-based adaptive assessment programs using modules that allow students to work at their own speed and comfort level. The higher the score on the ACT or COMPASS/ACCUPLACER Writing Exam, the fewer Basic Writing credits students are required to take. These Basic Writing courses are at the self-support tuition rate. Once successfully completed, Composition I (ENGL 101) may be taken.
