Academic and Student Affairs

AGENDA ITEM: 3 – J (2)

DATE: May 11-12, 2016

SUBJECT: New Minor: USD Minor in Multicultural Studies

The University of South Dakota (USD) requests authorization to offer a baccalaureate minor in Multicultural Studies. USD does not currently have a major in this field, but the proposed interdisciplinary program aligns with the university’s commitment to promoting liberal arts, citizenship, and social responsibility. The minor will provide students with multiple cultural perspectives and prepare graduates to communicate effectively across cultural boundaries as a complement to a wide range of majors and career paths. USD expects to graduate seven students per year with this minor after full implementation. The proposed curriculum requires the addition of three new courses and consists of eighteen credit hours. USD is not requesting new resources.

1. Do you have a major in this area? _____ Yes X No

2. If you do not have a major in this area, explain how the proposed minor relates to your mission.

The Multicultural Studies minor is an interdisciplinary program that furthers the university's stated commitment to becoming a regional leader in diversity and inclusiveness, and the practice of Inclusive Excellence, as well as its goals of graduating broadly informed and globally aware students and supporting the academic values of the liberal arts, including citizenship and social responsibility. An important component of this commitment is the effort to provide students with preparation for leading, navigating, and succeeding in increasingly diverse local, national, and international communities, and this minor offers an academic framework for understanding the challenges and opportunities associated with a new multicultural reality.

3. How will the proposed minor benefit students?

The University of South Dakota requests authorization to offer a baccalaureate minor in Multicultural Studies. The proposed minor will make the university's graduates more attractive to employers by providing students with academic and practical skills related to issues of diversity, inclusion, globalization, and cultural awareness. The ability to demonstrate an understanding of multiple perspectives, to communicate effectively across cultural boundaries, and to initiate, maintain, and support inclusive practices will complement a wide range of majors and career paths.

4. Provide estimated enrollments and completions in the table below and explain how the estimates were developed.

	Fiscal Years*
	1st	2nd	3rd	4th
Estimates	FY17	FY18	FY19	FY20
Students in the minor (fall)	3	6	9	12
Completions by graduates		3	5	7

* Do not include current year.

5. What is the rationale for the curriculum?

Diversity among humans is defined as the presence of variety regarding many dimensions including, but not limited to, including race, ethnicity, disability, sexual orientation, socioeconomic status, gender identity and expression, religion, age, veteran status, and nationality. Variations in human diversity yield both challenges and opportunities. Incidents of intergroup conflict in business, politics, communities, institutions of higher learning and other sectors of society engender opportunities for leaders to undertake positive change, civil discourse, and innovation. Given a shift in research on leadership from a focus on personal characteristics (e.g., articulate, intelligent, charismatic, personable, etc.) to abilities and skills required to lead diverse groups (e.g., task forces, innovation teams, diverse communities, etc.), the minor emphasizes an interdisciplinary approach to developing these abilities and skills.

Students who pursue this minor will gain awareness and understanding of concepts, histories, and theories of multiculturalism, as well as the practice of leading and working within diverse disciplinary contexts. Moreover, students will acquire an understanding of themselves including subconscious processes such as implicit bias, stereotypes, privilege, and microaggressions; the power of diversity and how to use it to bring innovation and change, and the practice of entering different worldviews, engaging in civil discourse, and creating inclusive workplaces. The minor will provide an academic basis for both the theory and practice of multicultural leadership, and will encourage participation in various co-curricular opportunities, including the Voices of Discovery Intergroup Dialogue Program, the Multicultural Leadership for the 21st Century Retreat, Diversity Symposium, and Campus and Community Service.

7. What outcomes will be expected for all students who complete the minor? How will these outcomes be achieved?

Students who complete this minor will

1. Demonstrate a familiarity with the concepts, histories, and theories of multiculturalism, as well as the practice of leading and working within diverse disciplinary contexts.
2. Demonstrate an understanding of themselves, including subconscious processes such as implicit bias, stereotypes, privilege, and microaggressions,
3. Recognize the power of diversity as a tool for innovation and change,
4. Demonstrate the ability to communicate effectively with others, as well as the practice of entering different worldviews, engaging in civil discourse, and creating inclusive workplaces.

These outcomes will be achieved through required and elective coursework in the minor.

8. What instructional technologies will be used to teach courses in the minor? This refers to the instructional technologies used to teach the new courses in the minor and NOT the technology applications students are expected to learn.

A&S 140 will be taught in classrooms using USD smart classroom technology, with Symposium stations promoting an efficient environment for the delivery of electronic presentations such as PowerPoint. Some classes will employ Turning Point audience response systems (clickers), providing another mode of engagement, polling, and in-class quizzing. Most courses will utilize the Desire2Learn course management system to provide course information, post course materials, and, in some cases, offer quizzes. For some courses it is expected that students will be required to access library services and use searchable databases and on-line journals.

9. Is the University is requesting authorization to provide the minor to students at an off-campus location or by distance delivery? If yes, explain.

None.

10. Costs, Budget & Resources: Explain the amount and source(s) of any one-time and continuing investments in personnel, professional development, release time, instructional technology and software, other O&M, facilities, etc needed to implement the minor.

The only new course included in this proposal, A&S 140 Introduction to Multicultural Studies, will be taught in-load by the Associate Vice President for Diversity or other approved faculty members in the Office of Diversity. All other courses are currently offered with existing faculty and resources.
