Each of the committee members made important contributions to the process and the selection of the school's next president. A special thank you to each of them for the professional manner in which they conducted the business of the committee. The results of this search are directly attributed to your dedication and commitment.

Regent Sutton thanked the campus community for its participation in the process. He explained how the campus assisted the Board in the beginning by nominating colleagues to serve on the search committee, by soliciting and making nominations of outstanding candidates, by patiently responding to the process, and by participating in the three-day campus interviews. He stated that one of the great things about the selection process is that it allows the campuses and the Board of Regents to become better acquainted and to work together on issues concerning all of us. Given the challenges and opportunities that lie ahead, such cooperation can only be beneficial.

He said this effort has also served to remind the Board of the extremely valuable role that South Dakota State University plays in the development of the region's economy and its people. Our search for excellence also demands leadership that is responsive and innovative; aware not only of the present, but also of the potential. At this point, Regent Sutton asked for a motion from the presidential search committee for the appointment of the new president of South Dakota State University.

Regent Kathryn Johnson said at this time she was pleased to present to the Board of Regents a report from the presidential search committee. She explained that with an outstanding field of candidates, the committee narrowed the field to an excellent pool of finalists that visited the campus last week.

It is from this group of talented and experienced leaders that she recommended the appointment of Dr. Barry Dunn as President of South Dakota State University.

She said Dr. Dunn is currently the endowed dean of the College of Agriculture and Biological Sciences, the director of SDSU Extension, and professor of animal science at South Dakota State University. Dr. Dunn brings a deep understanding of SDSU. Every day, he works to make strong connections between this university and policymakers, alumni, donors, faculty and staff, athletic and academic organizations, business leaders, and the agricultural industry. After receiving his Ph.D. and M.S. degrees in animal science and a B.S. degree in biology, all from South Dakota State University, he first worked in Brookings as an Extension livestock specialist and assistant professor in the Department of Animal and Range Science. He returned to SDSU after spending six years at Texas A&M University as executive director of the King Ranch Institute for Range Management. He currently administers a $78 million annual budget, which includes more than $20 million in grant and contract awards, along with fundraising and development. He has been the South Dakota Corn Utilization Council endowed dean since 2010, as well as director of SDSU Extension and professor of animal science. Dr. Dunn has experienced SDSU from more vantage points than most: as a dean, professor, researcher, student, father, business owner, and resident. He is deeply committed to SDSU.

She introduced Dr. Barry Dunn, Jane Dunn, and their children, Michael and Thomas.

IT WAS MOVED by Regent Johnson, seconded by Regent Jewett that Dr. Barry Dunn be appointed President of South Dakota State University effective May 23, 2016.
